Patrolling the Beach.

'May I go with you?' asked Win Waters, who chanced to be calling at the Life-Saving Station near Pebbly Beach, one evening.

'Oh, yes,' replied Sam Williams, in his hearty way. 'Plenty of room.'

Sam was about leaving the kitchen, which was also the living room of the Life Saving Station. The clock on the wall had just blithely sung out, 'One—two—three—four—five—six—seven—eight t-t!' Some of the crew had sleepily stumbled up the short, narrow flight of stairs leading to their quarters for the night. Simes Towle, who, until the appointment of a keeper, was now acting as the head man at the station, had gone into the boat-room adjoining the kitchen. It was a room about 30 feet long, with a big door mouth in front, and a glass eye on each of two sides. The boat-room contained the big surf-boat, warranted to be twenty-four feet in length and not to sink, as it was buoyed up by air chambers at each end. Then there was a cart, l aded with all kinds of apparatus needed for the relief of a wreck, and ready to be rolled out of the boat-room's 'mouth' the very moment it was opened. In this room there were also coils of rope, a light line to tie shot to a wreck and a mortar for shooting it, a breeches-buoy, a life car, drawers packed with rockets and coast signals—how many things, indeed. The acting keeper now came out of the boat-room, swinging a lantern in his hand. He was a short, stout man with gray whiskers and blue eyes, and he was dressed in a blue flannel suit.

'You all ready, Sam?' inquired the acting keeper.

'Jest about.'

Sam had put on a short, heavy fisherman's jacket and a 'sou'wester,' and tucked his trousers into a pair of long rubber boots that an elephant (small one) could have walked in. Beneath the drooping eaves of his 'sou'wester' protruded a sharp red nose, and somewhere in the rear flashed two bright brown eyes. A long sandy beard fringed like a broom the lower portion of his face.

'Here's your time detector,' called out the acting keeper.

'All right,' said Sam, picking up a small leather case, to which was attached a long leather shoulder strap.

'And let me see! I b'lieve I have got my custom signal,' exclaimed Sam, clapping his hand down on his pocket and proving its contents. The 'signal' was a small black package, perhaps three inches long and an inch in diameter. It fitted into a brass socket furnished with a handle. When the handle was pressed down, this drove a sharp rod out of the socket into the signal, striking a percussion cap which ignited a fuse. 'Come, Win!' called out Sam, snatching up a lantern. 'Time I was out on that 'ere beat.'

He opened the door to let his companion out, closed it, and then halted a minute to get, as he affirmed, his 'bearin's.'

'There's a moon somewhere, and it isn't dark,' he said, looking up to the stars that snapped like small coals on a big, black hearth. Then he looked off on the sea, which was an indefinite mass of darkness, but announced its presence by a steady and rather a savage roar-r-r r! There was a little snow that whitened the rocky rim of the beach along which they slowly trudged.

'What do you say they call you?' asked Win.

'I am a surfman, and that means, I s'pose, good at handlin' a craft in the surf; and then I go on these beats and am a patrolman,' replied Sam.

'How many watches do you have at night?'

'Wall, the first watch is from sunset till eight, and the second from eight to twelve, and from twelve till four is the third watch, and from four till sunrise, or at eight, is the fourth watch. Then comes the first watch again. We have to go in the daytime if the weather is so thick and hazy that we can't see two miles each way from the station. That 'ere lookout on top of the Station is where we watch on clear days, and we put down each vessel that passes.'

On they stumbled, over the black, slippery rocks that the tide had lately washed, splashing now through dark pools, then stepping into a patch of soft gray sand, or hobbling over the uneasy pebbles that gave the beach its name. All the while Sam's lantern twinkled faithfully by the side of its master, and Win kept up a persevering fire of questions.

'Do you have many in your crew?'

'We have a keeper and seven surfmen, one bein' cook. I tell ye, Win, on a howlin night, it is tough goin' along shore. Once I was an hour and a half goin' a mile. You see, my lantern was blown out, and then I couldn't see.'

'How many stations are there in the United States?'

'There were one hundred and eighty-nine by the last official report, but there are more now. They are addin' all the time. Here, at this station, we go on the first of September and leave by the first of May, and each man has fifty dollars a month from the Government. We have to find, though, our own rations.'

'Now, Sam, what would you do if you should see a wreck?'

'Wall, I should burn my signal, and hurry to the station and rouse 'em.'

'What then?'

'Wall, we should launch the surf-boat if it wasn't too rough, and if 'twas, we should get out the mortar and the Lyle gun, and fire a line to the wreck, if near enough.'

'What then?'

'Wall, we should send 'em a life car or the breeches-buoy, and if they're sensible, they'll come ashore in a 'mazin' quick time.'

They had now left the beach, and were crossing a snowy field.

'So quick!' said Sam. 'Here we are at the house where I take out my detector.'

'In that leather case you carry?'

'Yes. This is an ingenious way, I think, to make us faithful. Do you see that key?'

As Sam held up the lantern, Win caught the gleam of a brass chain that secured a key to the wall of the house. Sam took the key, inserted it in the time detector, turned it till it clicked, and then, turning it back, withdrew and placed it in its niche.

'There, when you heard that click, a little dial inside was struck, and to-morrow mornin' the actin' keeper will take the dial out, look at it, and see the record of my faithfulness,' said Sam, proudly.

The patrollman here turned, and, pointing his sharp nose toward the beach once more, followed it faithfully. With him went the battered old 'sou'wester,' time detector, custon signal, and all, till, once more, Sam and his young companion were stumbling over the slippery rocks, among the dripping pools, the sand patches, and the ugly bowlders and pebbles.

'Hullo!' exclaimed Sam, suddenly and excitedly. The patrollman, who had been slouching along, lazily swinging his lantern, apparently seeing nothing but his rubber boots, and yet in reality watching the dark, treacherous sea closely, as a hound would eye an enemy's track, was a very different being now. His figure straightened; the old sou'wester went back as if struck by a big meteorite. Down he set his lantern, out came his custon signal, the rod in the handle was forced down, and up into the night flashed a red light. The rocks, the pools, the sand, the surf, were stained by this warning ray, while Sam danced along the sands, and then slipped down to the edge of the crimsoned, tumbling surf as if a gazelle and not a heavy patrolman were inside the big rubber boots.

'What is it?' asked the astonished Win, who thought Sam had gone crazy.

'Don't yer see?'

'Oh, yes! There it is!'

The 'it' was a dark object that Sam pronounced a 'coaster,' its sails looming up against the starry sky, and moving dangerously near the rocky shore.

'All right!' exclaimed Sam. 'She's doin' better! Didn't you hear 'em say, 'Hard up! Put your hel-um up!'?

'I tell ye, a patrolman is all ears at such a time.'

'All legs, also, I should say.'

'Ha, ha! she's all right! Next time, you land lubbers, try and do better.'

'Wonder who those are aboard.'

'Don't know. However, I'd signal if I knew it was my worst enemy.'

'Have you any enemies?' asked Win, surprised to know that this good natured patrolman had an enemy.

'I began to think I had one t'other day,' said Sam,' as the two slowly walked toward the station. 'Our life-saving stations are set of in deestricks, and there's a superintendent over each one. Ours came down on me last week—his name's Myrich—'cause he said I'd been drinkin' at the village the night afore, and he could prove it. He said I'd left my name, 'Sam Williams,' chalked on the saloon counter. It wasn't me, for 'bout that time I was down here, as I ought to have been, but I couldn't prove what they call an alibi—or lallyby, as a man said—for nobody here saw me just that hour, as I was outside the house, a strollin' back of it. Myrich was down on me, and didn't drop me, but put me on probation! Me on probation! I felt pretty hard toward Myrich, I tell ye.'

Sam fumed all the way to the station and yet when Win asked him if he would have burned that signal for Myrich, Sam's prompt answer was: 'I'd have burnt it for a dog, and of course I would for Myrich. Musn't let your feelin's interfere with your duty.'

The next day Sam was about entering the station after a walk down Pebbly Beach, when he halted in the doorway. There was the little living room. Between the two windows, eyeing the east, was the stove. Above it was a wooden frame for drying all kinds of wet things. A cupboard was in one corner, and opposite was a yellow dining table. Over the table, on the wall, ticked a clock, and a barometer said 'Fair.' The surfmen were sitting about the stove. Were they all surfmen? Out from this group stepped Mr. Myrich, the Superinteadent of the life-saving district. Advancing toward Sam, he said, 'Williams, you know I felt obliged to put you on probation the other day, but I learn that I was mistaken in my man—that somebody else by the name of Sam Williams was the chap in that saloon at the village. I learn that you were the patrol who burnt his signal so promptly last night, and I happened to be on that very vessel. I came here to transfer the acting keeper to be the head of another station, and I shall write to Washington that they must appoint you keeper here.'

And what could Sam Williams say? Imagine!

THE MAN UNDER THE BED.

Little Stories Illustrating Bravery in Women.

Every night hundreds of people, in fear and trembling with sticks in their hands, look below the bed for that "Man." Poor Pussie gets many a knock when her glaring eyes shine bright through the darkness, and the stick is brought thundering down on her sensitive back. If Pussie gives a fright to her good mistress, she pays her back when she springs out and leaves her mark on the good woman's nose, while her lord and master unfeeling wretch that he is, growls—"Serves you right. What in all the world do you expect to find!"

But if women—especially women who have nerves—oftenest look for the hidden foe, they are not the only searchers, for there is a story told of a worthy Scotch laird, who "caught his man," and who brought all his household to his room, with his shouts and laughter. There they saw the laird pulling out a man by the heels, and heard him cry:

"Come oat. I've found ye noo. My certy, I've looked every nicht for twenty years, and this is the first sicht I hae got o' ye." Then the laird gave the "Man" the reward he had laid up for 20 years.

There is a story told of a lady who somehow saw that a man had got below her bed. She was up in years. Her maids slept quiet at another end of the house. She knew that to scream out was to bring death to herself. So she sat down and calmly read aloud, then prayed, and then went to bed. And then the man, conscience-stricken, left the house, and years after said that her coolness had reformed him; and her brave and noble conduct had made him ashamed to rob or hurt any one in that house.

But there are very few people living who could copy that old lady's coolness. Most women would have screamed, or looked below every bed in the house at a reasonable hour, with her maids armed with pokers in their company. Among the many stories of men found in hiding below the bed there never seems to have been one who was not armed to the teeth. And he always was found out and punished as he deserved. Nor is it to be wondered at. For creeping under a bed is no easy task. It takes learning. And one wonder how any man armed to the teeth ever managed it. He must have felt his position dreadfully.

In the West there is a story of two servants left in charge of a large mansion near Glasgow. The cook had gone first up to bed, and when the housemaid followed she saw the heel of a man's boot where "nae buit should be," and remembering the warning she had got, she determined to "do" the owner. It would never have done to have told the cook, but she was exceedingly anxious to tell Aleck, the gardener.

"What a time ye're comin' to your bey," grumbled her "neebour."

"Deed ye may say it," answered the house maid. "Sic dirty wark as I hae had. I hae fair spoiled a' my goon."

"Ye'll be shaking it here an' makin' a stour," said the cook.

"I hae mair sense," answered the girl as she opened the window and shook her dress outside. "Plague tak' it," she cried, "there's my goon ower the windy."

"Mercy an us—the woman's daft," cried the cook. "Ye'll get it free the mistress. My word, you're in for 't."

"Ay, but I'll fetch it up," said her neebour, as she flew down the stairs, and then on to the gardener's, leaving the poor cook quite easy in her mind, little dreaming of "armed to the teeth" so near her.

The gardener was in the room before the "goon" was, and that man was pulled out and got his deserts.

ANECDOTES OF BUTLER.

His Four-Hundred Dollar Banquet, The Irishman and the monkey.

A Washington letter says: I heard the first true version of the monkey and hand organ story which has been privately told in army circles here now and then, but not always correctly. It comes to me from a high treasury official, who had something to do with the settlements of Gen. Butler's army accounts. These accounts were very large and some of the items seemed out of all nature to the expenses probably incurred. After Butler, however, explained them, it was seen that they were perfectly right and proper. There were so many of these strange items that Butler was called to the treasury to look over the accounts with the officials. One New Orleans item objected to was "Banquet, Post Office St. Charles Hotel—$400."

'Now,' said the treasurer, 'it's all right, Gen. Butler, for you to give as many banquets as you please, but I don't see how, in justice you could ask Uncle Sam to pay $400 for a supper which you choose to give to the postmaster at New Orleans at the St. Charles Hotel there.'

'Oh,' said Gen. Butler, with a laugh, 'That item is easily explained. 'Banquet,' is the New Orleans name for street, and that $400 was spent for fixing the street between the post office and St. Charles Hotel.'

After the laughter over this item had subsided, the treasury official said: 'Well, Gen. Butler, I have no doubt these accounts are right, and if you will explain satisfactorily one other item I will pass them. Here is a charge of $50 for a hand organ and a monkey. Now what possible use a hand organ and a monkey would be to the United States Government, or to you as its General, I cannot see.'

Gen. Butler then told the following: 'I can also explain that hand organ and monkey item. It was the hottest time of my campaign about Baltimore. The rebels were very close mouthed, and I could get no inside news of the doings of the rebels. One day I saw a great crowd gathering round a man with a hand organ who had a very large monkey. As I drew nearer I noticed that the man playing the organ looked very much like a smart Irishman whom I had among my soldiers. I said nothing but went back to my headquarters, and calling up the Irishman, in whom I had perfect confidence, gave him some money and told him to go and buy out the musician. He did so. He bought the hand organ, the monkey, and the musician's clothes, and paid $50 for them. Dressed in these, I sent him out as a spy. He traveled all the surrounding country and gave me some very valuable information. This information was worth thousands of dollars to the United States Government, and,' concluded Butler, 'you can thus see why it paid the United States to pay $50 for a hand organ and a monkey.'

Filthiness of Imported Rags.

Great quantities of rags are shipped to the United States from all parts of the world. They are used for making paper, and are sent from the seaboard to the various paper mills throughout the country. The annual importation amounts to about five hundred thousand bales. Each bale contains from four hundred to one thousand pounds of rags. They are tightly pressed together, and come into this country securely bound for shipping. You can have no idea of the sources from which these rags are obtained. A large quantity of them come from Japan, and thousands of bales from Calcutta.

The Calcutta rags are the worst. They are made up in a large part from the wrappings of dead bodies. The bodies of the dead are thrown into the river, and when these rags float ashore or can other wise be gotten, they are shipped here for the paper trade. Sometimes impurities of different kinds creep into the bales. In one bale, not long ago, a dead baby was found, and in other bales other foul matter has been discovered.

The Egyptian rags are largely tainted with camel's manure, and those gathered from the gutters and streets of Shanghai are foul beyond description. A great amount of rags comes from Japan to us. I think there are more than forty thousand bales now on the way. Some of the rags sent to this country come from districts in which infectious diseases are raging, and it is a fact worth noticing that all of the vessels arriving here, in which small-pox has broken out, have been vessels carrying rags.

The city of New York embraces an area of 24,394 acres. Within the city limits are 500 miles of public roads, exclusive of parks, and to clean these $1,100,000 was expended in the year 1885 Seventy-five thousand dollars is annually spent in removing snow and ice alone.

A Georgia Romance.

About two years before the war, near a pretty and substantial residence near a prosperous little town, a beautiful young lady, about fourteen, was sleeping in a hammock swung from two stately oaks in a grove. She was a pretty picture of innocence and grace, and won the admiration of the passers. In a medow to the rear a fat, meek-eyed cow reclined in the shade, ruminating the food she had gathered in the cool of the morning. Across the road from the house, the girl, and the cow is a meadow, a branch running through it, and coming up the branch is a boy with a gun. When within one hundred yards of the girl, and about one hundred and fifty yards from the cow, a bird flew up and sailed in the air toward the cow; the boy fired at the bird, which flew on unhurt, but the cow received a pretty strong dose of shot. She immediately arose in fright, dashed through the grove, caught the girl and hammock on her horns, and rushed with her shrieking victim about the lot. The terrified girl became silent, and the crowd of relatives and friends in pursuit thought that she was dead. The wild fury of the cow as she rushed around soon tore the netting loose, and the girl dropped unconsciously to the ground. She was picked up and taken into the house, and on examination only a few minor bruises were found. The boy, thinking he was the innocent cause of the killing of the young girl, disappeared. It was thought that he had perished by his own hand, but about six years after the war a travel-stained stranger was in the town inquiring for persons, most of whom had been swept away by the war. After a long search the stranger found an old man on a load of wood, and in conversation with him learned where one of the parties he was in search of lived, a few miles out of town. He went there, made himself known, and turned out to be the boy of the gun. The people he found were his father and mother, who had mourned him dead for eight years. The boy had been in South America, got rich, and, yearning for the love of the old folks, returned to the desolate home of his childhood and made his loved ones comfortable. For the first time, then, hearing that the girl was uninjured, he called on her, found her pretty, good, and a first-class home woman. He put in with a will, got her heart as his own, and the old folks' consent, and has been for the last twelve or fourteen years one of the leading men of this section. This is a fact.—Americus (Ga.) Recorder.

George Washington as a Jumper.

When Washington was a young man in traveling along the upper Potomac he stoped at an inn one day and inquired the news. The landlord told him the sensation of the day was a jumping match for a wife on the estate of one of the richest planters near by. On being told that it was open to all comers, Washington started for the place and arived there just as the jumping was about completed. He noticed that the young lady in question was highly pleased with the successful jumping of one of the competitors who had out-distanced all of the others. At the close Washington asked if he might try his chances. He was told to go ahead, and he made by far the best jump of the day. As he returned to the crowd he noticed that the young lady's face had fallen, and he went up to her and remarked: 'You would have preferred I had not been the one to excel the other?' The lady candidly said this was so. 'Then,' said Washington, 'I give my chance to him,' and he returned as unknown as he came. Towards the close of the Revolution this young lady, now the wife of a colonel of militia, met Washington and on telling her husband that she had met him before he doubted the fact, and the two went to Washington to decide it. 'Yes,' replied Gen. Washington, 'I saw your wife at the jumping match before she was married, and I believe I won her.'

A Dread of Matrimony.

In some cases, Chinese girls have such a dread of the matrimonial chain that they prefer death to marriage. 'Of all people,' said Confucius, 'women are most difficult to manage. If you are familiar with them, they become forward, and, if you keep them at a distance, they become discontented.' So many are the disabilities of married women that many girls prefer going to Buddhist or Tauist nun eries, or even committing suicide, to trusting their future to men of whom they can know nothing but from the interested reports of the go-betweens. Archdeacon Gray, in his work on China, states that in 1878 eight young girls residing near Canton 'who had been affianced, drowned themselves in order to avoid marriage. They clothed themselves in their best attire, and at eleven o'clock, in the darkness of the night, having bound themselves firmly together, they threw themselves into a tributary stream of the Canton river.'

CREDIT AND BLAME.

A Paragrapher's Sermon on a Most Important Subject.

My son, it is a comforting doctrine, and one that men often preach to each other, that a man deserves all credit for every thing good that he does, and for all the good that he is, but that somebody else is to blame for all the evil in him. Mr. Gough has been criticised for saying: 'Young man, make your record clean.' The prophets who speak comfortably say that the young man cannot make his record clean when his father makes a bad record before him; that society and the evil tendencies of it, and something the scientists call his 'environment,' write the young man's record bad in spite of him. Oh! my dear boy, this is a doctrine too cowardly for a young man to accept. Ever since Adam, the founder of society and the inventor of the first record ever made in this world, a man without an 'environment' to his back, made a bad record and then said: 'The woman thou gavest to be with me, she did it all,' men have always pleaded the irresistible force of surroundings and circumstances. The woman was younger than Adam; she was weaker; many wise men say she is intellectually the inferior of man; she was a new-comer in the garden, and yet how glad your old grandfather was to say that it was all your grandmother's fault; and that, being thus led astray by influences and examples which no man could control or resist, he should not be responsible for his disobedience! And in her turn your grandmother laid it on to the snake, just as to day in Christian homes all over this land, the evil deeds of men and servants are laid to the cat. But, for all this excuse, Adam was fired out of the garden, and it served him right. Now, my boy, the other man may eat forbidden fruit until he founders, and not a bite that he swallows is going to hurt you. A dose strychnine big enough to kill a cow won't hurt you if you don't swallow any of it. When you swear, you do your own swearing; you can't borrow another man's tongue to damn a beggar with. When you get drunk, you get drunk. The law doesn't fine the man who sells the whiskey; it fines the man who drinks it. When you steal anything, from a pin to the Broadway road, you do your own stealing, and—in the case of the pin at least—the law holds you responsible for it, not the man who coaxed you to steal, nor yet the citizen who, by owning valuable property which you could not buy, thereby tempted you to steal it. You are the fellow who does all the wickedness that is wrought by your hands and your lips. It tires me to hear a man always excusing himself, and citing some dreadful, wicked Jeroboam which made him to sin. Not, indeed, that we hold the Jeroboams guiltless. 'It must needs be that offenses come; but woe to that man by whom the offense cometh!' But because the mill-stone and a soft place in the sea is the proper combination for the man who helps you to stumble, you do not go free. I have no right to turn a cross dog into the street; but if I do, he will bite you if you go fooling around him. Wherefore 'cave canem,' which by interpretation is: 'Don't monkey with the dog.' As the dog will not beware of you, do you beware of the dog. You may have noticed on the sacredotal garments of your instructor, my son, some queer, unsightly splashes here and there. Well, I put them on myself. Without the assistance or by the fault of any man I did it. And if there are any more to go on before I have it renovated, I am the only fellow who can put them there. Now you may go and play and have fun, and do not let me ever again hear you say that you would be the best boy in the world if only all the other boys were dead.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken by your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

GOVERNOR PATTISON, after having finished his thorough investigation of the Soldiers' Orphans' Schools, proceeds to do some wholesome turning-out of rascally officials. Rev. J. W. Sayers, Male Inspector, and Mrs. Elizabeth W. Hunter, Female Assistant Inspector, have been summarily ejected from office, and General Wagner is made inspector of the schools. That gentleman in his letter of acceptance to the governor wishes it to be understood the he will not take any salary for services rendered, but that the amount of his pay shall go back to the state treasury. This is surely a rare exhibition of unselfishness and stands in strong contrast to the greed and dis honesty of a syndicate that filled their pockets at the expense of the state, and the poor neglected orphans. Further on, Rev. E. E. Higbee, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, has been asked to resign as superintendent of the Orphans' schools. At this writing he has not done so yet, but it is certainly the best and most advisable course for him to pursue under the circumstances.

But the Governor does not stop here, but in his communication to Attorney-General Cassidy, in which he sums up all the abuses and irregularities existing in the schools, he instructs that gentleman to proceed against the offenders civilly and criminally and requests him not to let a stone unturned to bring the guilty parties to justice. Such is the manner in which our determined and energetic executive proposes to rectify the wrong committed in said institutions and his good work has the full approval of every true Pennsylvanian. Every man with humane feelings and a sense of fairness will favor the sifting of this disgraceful affair until every offensive particle is removed and the schools are again in a creditable condition.

THE CAMPAIGN is drawing nigh and as a natural consequence aspiring candidates are heard from. Among the few county offices to be filled this fall is the office of District Attorney. We have for some time been aware of the intention of our esteemed friend, Mr. J. Calvin Meyer, to become a candidate for that office, but were not authorized to make a public announcement of the fact until of late. Mr. Meyer is well and favorably known to nearly all our readers, being a son of Hon. J. G. Meyer, of Aaronsburg, which town he is proud to call his home. It seems therefor but natural for us to make the first mention of his candidacy and we do it cheerfully. Several years ago he entered Adam Hoy's law-office in Bellefonte, and by close application and hard study has arrived at a point where he can see success ahead, and now figures as one of Centre county's rising young lawyers. He is of sterling character, natuarl ability and genial disposition and is in every way fitted for the office and worthy of support. It may also be said that he is a genuine democrat and was an active worker in his party ever since he cast his first ballot. In due time Mr. Meyer's formal card as a candidate will appear in the JOURNAL and in the meanwhile we submit this short and well-deserved encomium to our readers with the hope that they will give his candidacy favorably consideration.

THE Republican State Committee met on Wednesday afternoon, April 14th, at Harrisburg, with Senator Cooper in the chair, in order to fix a day and place for holding the next Republican state convention The chairmen from the different counties gave glowing reports of the condition of the party within their respective districts and all were full of hope, promising large majorities for Beaver, which would seem to leave no chance at all for the Democrats. But our time has not come yet. The assembly completed its work by deciding to hold the state convention at Harrisburg, June 30.

THE latest piece of news, fresh from the press, and which shakes the political and social circles of the national capital at present, is, that President Cleveland is engaged to be married to a Miss Folsom, the event to take place some time in June. If Grover Cleveland makes as good a husband as he is a president the prospective bride has all reason to be happy.

THE sad accounts of the Western cyclones are not very encouraging news to emigrants about ready to start for those parts of the country.

To Investigate Mr. Gould.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—The Speaker to-day appointed the following committee to investigate the causes and extent of the labor troubles in the West: Messrs. Curtin, of Pennsylvania; Crain, of Texas; Outwaite, of Ohio; Stewart, of Vermont; Parker, of New York, and Buchanan, of New Jersey.

State Teachers.

The Pennsylvania State Teacher's Association will meet in Allentown, July 6, 7 and 8. The following topics have been selected for discussion: Defects in our School Laws. Some phase of the Normal School Question. The Relation of Colleges and Public Schools. The Study of Birds. Primary Work. What can Supplant the County Institute?

During Tuesday's thunder storm an eight-year-old girl was killed by lightning in the schoolroom at Freeland, Pa. Another death, caused by lightning the same afternoon, occurred at Shenandoah, the victim being a boy named James Manley, who was at work on a dirt bank near one of the collieries.

AN AUSTRIAN TOWN SWEPT BY FIRE.

A Hundred People Killed in One Street and Hundreds of Others Missing.

VIENNA, April 18.—The town of Stry, in Galicia, has been almost completely destroyed by fire. The number of houses burned is about six hundred. The inhabitants are destitute.

A high wind was blowing and the fire started in several parts of the town at about the same time. Many inhabitants were killed by falling walls and steeples. One hundred persons were killed in one street. The Town Hall, railway station and the telegraph office were destroyed. A large number of wounded were extricated from the ruins and were sent to Lemberg, forty-two miles distant, where the hospitals are crowded with the sufferers. Hundreds of persons are missing.

Lack of water rendered aid by the military futile. Money and food are being collected in the surrounding towns for the relief of the sufferers.

Cyclones of Death.

ST. CLOUD, Minn., April 15—The wreck by the cyclone here and at Sauk Rapids, of which only meager particulars could be learned last night, is complete. The scene here is ghastly in the extreme. After darkness came on last night the rain poured down in torrents on the ruins. The skies hung low with black clouds. Peals of thunder shook the air, and the lightning made livid rifts in the great black pall of darkness. Unmindful of all this, hundreds of men carrying lanterns, and many wailing women wandered through the frightful wreck, groping in the gutters and turbid streams for bodies of friends. Inside the engine house 18 lifeless bodies lay on the floor in two rows, draped in sheets and blankets, while around and among them moved men with lanterns, uncovering faces trying to recognize in in the distorted features some familiar lines in which they might trace relationship. The bodies presented a terrible spectable.

It is estimated that 400 structures were blown down, all of frame and none costly. In the Catholic Hospital there are about 40 wounded, but only 5 or 6 of them are considered to be in a dangerous condition. Many of the survivors will be disabled for life.

At Sauk Rapids similar scenes of misery and desolation were presented. So far twenty-two dead bodies have been discovered there, and there are a great many injured. The total loss at both places will exceed half a million dollars.

Towns in Iowa, and Missouri were also struck by the cyclone, completely wrecking some of them and killing and injuring quite a number of peopie.

—Three more pupils from this place in Miss Kate Schriner's music school at Mifflinburg are Lodie, Musser, Sallie Alexander and Lydia Gutelius. Miss Schriner's fame as a successful music teacher is spreading rapidly and her school is crowded to such an extent that she had to refuse a number of scholars

—The first issue of the Franklin Penny Press, a four-page five-column daily, independent, published at Franklin, Pa., by Saml. P. Bringham, reached this office on Tuesday. According to its advertising columns the citizens of that oily town seem to fully appreciate the worth of a lively local paper. Success to the proprietor of the paper.

—George, a little son of H. A. Moyer, of Boonville, had his right hand cut off at the wrist one day last week. He and his younger brother Harry were playing around a Rotary feed cutter, amusing themselves by cutting hay and straw in the barn. Harry was turning the machine, when George's hand came in too close contact with the knives, resulting in the above accident.

HOW HARD THEY ARE TO SUIT.—But a few weeks ago everybody complained of the everlasting rains and the superfluous amount of water. Now because the ground is becoming dry on top and the roads a little dusty they clamor for rain already. It's a good thing that the regulation of the weather is beyond their control else there would be a different sky over every square rod.

—Abs. Harter's house on Main St., formerly D. I. Brown's tinshop, is being renovated. Thomas Hockman weatherboarded and painted his house on Mill street, and J. W. Stam had a new roof and cornice put on his brick house on Penn street. And so the work of improving the town properties continues from week to week until Millheim, at the end of this summer, will present a new and handsome appearance.

—Dr. C. S. Musser touched native soil on Monday, when he landed at New York, after a stay of almost a year in European countries. He will spend a few days with his sister, Mrs. Ella Irey, at Chester Springs, and is expected to arrive at his parental home at Aaronsburg end of this week, and then Sumner may say with Byron—

"'Tis sweet to hear the watch-dog's honest bark,
Bay deep-mouthed welcome as we draw near home;
'Tis sweet to know there is an eye will mark
Our coming, and look brighter when we come."

DEATH.—Mrs. John Bierly, of Rebersburg, died early on Sunday morning, having reached the age of 75 years, 7 months and 20 days. The immediate cause of her death was pneumonia. Mrs. Bierly was a widow, her husband having preceeded her to eternity about four years ago. In her departure Miles township loses a most respected and neighborly old lady, and the United Brethren church, which she joined 45 years ago, a consistant and faithful member. The funeral took place on Tuesday forenoon when Rev. Wasson, of this place, conducted the services, assisted by Revs. Bason and Dotterer.

—Only six licenses were granted in Huntingdon county, and some of the leading hotels were refused. In announcing the decision of the court, Judge Furst said they were of the opinion that they could not arbitrarily grant all applications nor refuse all, and that they had decided each particular case upon the facts presented in relation to it. The number of licenses granted is six, two to hotels and one to a bottling establishment in Huntingdon, one to a hotel in Orbisonia, one in Dudley, and one in Broad Top city. Licenses were refused to the Leister House and the Hotel Brunswick, the leading hotels in Huntingdon.

—It is asserted by the Clearfield strikers that next week the men will all be out again or all at work. This is understood to be a threat that the strike is to be made general again, as it is not expected that the operators who have refused to give the advance have changed their determination. The men now working at fifty cents a ton are willing to sacrifice their earnings if thought necessary to aid those whose demands have not yet been granted. This feeling extends to the Broad Top region, where operators would increase their output were it not that they fear a renewal of the strike. The miners' relief committee in the Clearfield region has issued an appeal for help. It says that many of the men are in a sad state and scores of homes have not within them a loaf of bread.—Bellefonte Daily News,

—Last week's Centre Democrat reports that Mr. Bibby, the landlord of the Spring Mills House, had the misfortune to loose $1.248 in cash, on the train going to Lewisburg. When he arrived there he missed the envelope containing said sum of money and at once had a search made for it. The envelope was found on the seat he had been occupying, but the contents were gone.

The City National Bank of Williamsport closed its doors on Tuesday forenoon. A receiver for the bank will be appointed as speedily as possible and its affairs liquidated. It is asserted that the collapse is largely due to the peculations of E. P. Deitrich, a former book keeper in the bank, who several years ago robbed the bank of about $40,000. Most of that amount was recovered. But of late the bank suffered great losses by business failures, which is the real cause of the bankruptcy.

—Last Sunday, (Palm Sunday) which commemorates the triumphant entry of our Saviour into Jerusalem, was a fine spring day and the various church services, Sunday schools and religious meetings were well attended by our town people. This is passion week and the 1886th anniversary of Christ's atonement for the world. It includes Good Friday, the day of Christ's death upon the cross, followed by the greatest and most important of all church festivals, Easter—commemorative of Christ's glorious resurrection. The Christian world will celebrate this joyous time by a proper observance of the church rituals.

—One of the most cruel calamities brought about by that domineering dictator, fashion, is the wearing of dead birds as ornaments. It involves wholesale slaughter of birds and the ultimate extermination of the most beautiful species in our own country. The ladies could easily avert this by refusing to wear birds as ornaments, and follow the example of the wife of the Governor of Iowa, who recently called a convention of the wives of all the legislative members, and organized a society with the purpose of making a vigorous crusade against the abominable fashion.

A NEW METHOD.—Mr. S. T. Brooks, of Bellefonte, is at present in town selling Prof. Rice's International System of Lessons in Music. The outfit consists of a large Chart, printed on both sides, with full instructions in the first rudiments of organ and piano playing. Everything, from the names of the keys to the playing of major and minor chords, is explained in the most simple and comprehensible manner on this chart. Along with the chart goes the Key, a book of 16 pages, containing still more information. Then a music book giving practical lessons and some of the most pupular songs accompanies the chart and key. The whole series, consisting of three grades is sold for five dollars. Having closely examined the work we can say that this system of self-teaching is beyond a doubt the best in the market and cannot fail to give satisfaction. Looking at the work in a pecuniary light it is decidedly a cheaper plan to instruct your children than to engage teachers. We understand that Mr. Brooks has already made quite a number of sales.

"J. A. McDonald, Reedsville, Pa.
Dear Sir:—One of the most prominent citizens of our city and a gentleman well-known and highly respected in the surrounding country, called at our store and voluntarily offered to go before a justice of the peace and testify in an affidavit to the virtue of your Blood Purifier, saying that he had used but three bottles, and was now entirely cured of a distressing and long continued attack of erysipelas,, after having tried a number of other remedies without receiving any noticeable benefit. Please send us one dozen by express. We never had a medicine in our store that sells as readily or gave such universal satisfaction as your Blood Purifier."
For scrofula, erysipelas, tetter, salt rheum, skin diseases, humors, sores, eruptions, pimples, blotches, swellings, tumors, boils, ulcers, scald head, ringworm, syphillis, and all blood disorders, no remedy ever devised equals in power and efficacy McDonald's Great Blood Purifier or Sarsaparillian Alterative. Warranted. Seventy-five cents per bottle at all dealers in medicine.

Rebersburg and Vicinity.

EDITOR JOURNAL:—Seeing in your last week's issue that your former correspondent "Squibob" has quit writing for your worthy paper for the present, I concluded to fill the vacancy by an occasional slip containing items from this place. If you see fit publish them, if not consign them to the waste basket.

Last week a pocket book containing over one hundred dollars was stolen out of Wes. Snyder's coat, which was hanging in his house. Imagine his delight when afterwards he found the book with all the money in it lying on the seat of his land roller. The thief on taking a second thought must have reformed.

Our farmers have finished sowing oats. The weather was very favorable for this work and the farmers made good use of it.

Wm. Kreamer left for Bellefonte on Tuesday to attend Shick's horse sale.

L. B. Frank, one of our enterprising merchants, returned from the city with a large supply of spring goods.

Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Meyer took a trip to Jersey Shore last week.

Philip Hubler purchased a fine black horse from George Guiswite.

The steam saw mill of Guiswite & Co., which has been in operation for the last two years at Fowler's station, was removed to near this place.

Jacob Burkert and wife who have been living out in the country for the past year with their son-in-law, Geo. Haines, have returned to town and have taken up quarters in their old residence.

J. Harter, of this place, and a gentleman from Wolfe's store made a fine horsetrade this year. NIMROD.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has demonstrated its power of cure for all diseases of the blood.

The Harpooner's Story.

New Bedford, June 1, 1882.

DR. J. C. AYER & CO.—Twenty years ago I was a harpooner in the North Pacific, when five others of the crew and myself were laid up with scurvy. Our bodies were bloated, gums swollen and bleeding, teeth loose, purple blotches all over us, and our breath seemed rotten. Take it by and large we were pretty badly off. All our lime-juice was accidentally destroyed, but the captain had a couple dozen bottles of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA and gave us that. We recovered on it quicker than I have ever seen men brought about by any other treatment for Scurvy, and I've seen a good deal of it. Seeing no mention in your Almanac of your Sarsaparilla being good for scurvy, I thought you ought to know of this, and so send you the facts.
Respectfully yours, RALPH Y. WINGATE.

The Trooper's Experience.

Masren, Basutoland (S. Africa,) March 7, 1883.

DR. J. C. AYER & CO.—Gentlemen: I have much pleasure to testify to the great value of your Sarsaparilla. We have been stationed here for over two years, during which time we had to live in tents. Being under canvas for such a time brought on what is called in this country "veldt-sores." I had those sores for some time. I was advised to take your Sarsaparilla, two bottles of which made my sores disappear rapidly, and I am now quite well.
Yours truly, T. K. BODEN,
Trooper, Cape Mounted Riflemen.

A Considerate Man.

He Wrote a Check Without Delay, and Consequently Deserves Credit.

The other day a farmer-looking man entered a Griswold street bank with a check which he handed to the paying-teller, and which was at once returned to him with the remark:

"No money here."

"What! Are you out of money?" asked the caller.

"Oh, no. I mean that the man whose name is signed there has no money on deposit here."

"Is that so? Why, he's one of the nicest men I ever met."

"That may be, but his check isn't worth anything here."

"Isn't, eh? Why he boarded with me a whole month, and we think every thing of him. May be he's got the money here and it's mislaid somewhere."

"The check is worthless, sir. He never had a dollar on deposit here."

"Never did, eh? I don't see how it comes about. When I asked him for his board money he wrote this check out as quick as a wink. You couldn't pay it and trust him ror the money, eh?"

The teller looked at him in a sorrowful way for a moment, and the man continued:

'You'd better do that way. I hate to hurt his feelings, you know."

"Say, that check is worthless, and I don't wan't you to bother me!" exclaimed the teller.

"You don't, eh? Well, I won't, but I think it's a mean trick on your part. When a man goes and writes a check right off like he did, it ought to be paid. When I go home and he asks me if I got the money do you s'pose I'm going to tell him what you've said? Not much! I don't hurt nobody's feelings if I can help it."—Detroit Free Press.

Thirty Years A Detective.

ALLEN PINKERTON, the famous detective, was born in Glasgow, Scotland, in the year 1819. He died in Chicago, July 1st, 1884. It is difficult in a brief sketch to estimate his life and public services. It was a hard life, a busy life, and a great life, and it rendered services to this country which can hardly be over-estimated, and which it has been the fortune of but few men to equal.

His thousands of successful assaults against organized and determined crime, in many countries, are facts familiar, and they constitute a foundation for a fair and just estimate of his life and the man's real character.

The mental characteristics of Allen Pinkerton were judgment as to facts, knowledge of men, the ability to concentrate his faculties on one subject, and the persistent power of will. A mysterious problem of crime against which his life was devoted, presented to his thought was solved almost in an instant, and seemingly by his intuitions. With half-closed eyes he saw the scene in which the wrong was done, read every movement of the criminals, and reached invariably the correct conclusion as to the conduct of the crime, and the guilt of those who committed it. His mental view was broad; no one circumstance directed or controlled it. He saw all the facts, and on them based his conclusions. He was self-possessed and well-poised. The certainty of his judgement, though characterized by a quick movement of the intellect, was the result of vigorous and calm thought.

He has left us in his writings a sufficient chronicle of his detective experiences, that this and future generations may know much of his useful life. His ruling idea in the publication of his books was to show to the public how surely and inevitably detection and punishment follows the commission of crime, and it is wonderful that amid all his toils he found time sufficient to recount so ably his thrilling stories. They read like fiction, though facts they all are.

We call attention to the advertisement in another column of his principal book, "Thirty Years a Detective," for which G. W. Carleton & Co., the great New York Publishers, want agents.

AYER'S Hair Vigor cures baldness. Hair Vigor restores youthful freshness and color to faded and gray hair. It attains these results by the stimulation of the hair roots and color glands. It rejuvenates the HAIR and cleanses it. It restores to the that, either by reason of age or diseases of the scalp, has become dry, harsh and brittle, a pliancy and glossy silken softness of extreme beauty. There is no dye in Ayer's Hair and the good it does is by the VIGOR it imparts to the follicles, and the cleanliness and healthfulness of the condition in which it maintains the scalp.

AYER'S Hair Vigor renews the hair. Hair Vigor is the best cure known for Brashy Hair, Scald Head, Itching Humors, Tetter Sores, Torpid Follicles, and all other diseases of the scalp that cause the falling of the HAIR and its fading. Nothing cleanses of the nuisance of dandruff so perfectly, and so effectually prevents its return, as AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. In addition to the curative and restorative virtues peculiar to Ayer's Hair it is a toilet luxury. The Hair VIGOR is by far the cleanliest hair-dressing made. It causes the hair to grow thick and long, and keeps it always soft and glossy.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

QUAKER

Is the Best

TABLE SAUCE.

Thousands of articles are now manufactured that in former years had to be imported, paying high import duty as it is now being done on Lea & Perrins table sauce; the QUAKER TABLE SAUCE takes its place; it has been pronounced by competent judges just as good and even better. The QUAKER SAUCE has Slowly but surely gained great importance and is replacing the very best imported sauce on the shelf of the grocer, the tables of the restaurant and the tables of the rich and poor men, greatly prized and relished by all on account of its piquancy, aroma, taste, strength and purences. The inventor has by years of study of the secret virtues contained in the aromatic spices of the Indies and China, such as mace, nutmeg, cinnamon, genuine Jamaica ginger, and peppers all buds of trees unknown to most men, and by long practice succeeded to combine their extracts in such a liquid form as we now find it, of agreeable taste, and so invigorating as to be taken in place of stomach bitters. By manufacturing this sauce here, heavy import duties and freights are saved, and it is sold at a lower figure to the dealer, who making a better profit on Quaker Sauce can sell it to the consumer cheaper than he very best imported article hardly equaling ours. If your grocer does not keep it, write us for prices, etc. Sold in bottles or by the gallon.
